Mr. Tom - 1918

The smell of that formaldehyde
Makes me think I must have died.
Physics and biology,
Examine etymology.
Gain and lose electrons,
Kick out all the protons.
Balance the reactions.
Make some new transactions.
Stare at frogs
and moldy logs.
And remember just one thing.
You can seek out all of this
In the math and science wing.

Katie Telser

The wind whips around the trees,
And I feel restless.
The first cold drops fall, free and
By themselves.
I want to be with them,
Running and laughing,
Carefree.
Faster they fall, and faster —
And the faster they fall, the happier
I am.
When they stop, the world is clean
And fresh,
And I, too, feel clean.
I love rainstorms!

Keren Moses

Wicat

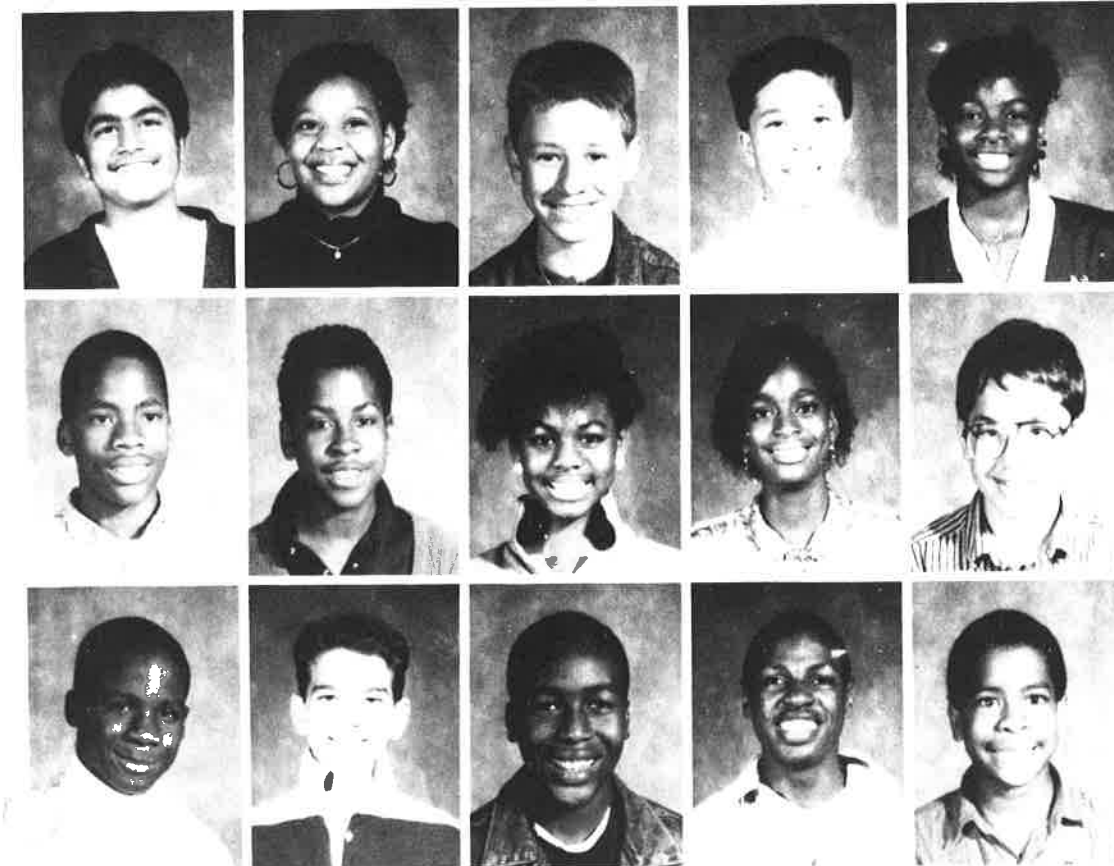

They look like computers
with no disk drives.
Sometimes it is hard,
But all I can do is strive.
I can get help from the computer,
and ask for it too.
A teacher will come over,
and show me what to do.
It's a brand new addition to Chute Middle School,
to help me with my math.
It's a great new tool!

Alison Shields

You can start with a point, whether thick or fine,
And if you stretch it out, then you'll have a line.
But a line is really boring, all it does is sit or dangle,
So add on another line, and then you'll have an angle.
But an angle's so indefinite; if you want to avoid a tangle,
Just add on another line, and you'll have a nice triangle.
But don't just let it sit, and gather wear and tear.
Add on another line, and then you'll have a square.
A square is tough and sturdy, but if you really want some brawn,
Just add on another line, and you'll have a pentagon.
When you have that shape, five lines have been drawn,
And if you add a sixth, then you'll have a hexagon.
Octagon, nonagon, decagon - I could go on forever,
But I'd never attempt that feat, for it's an impossible endeavor!

I love strawberries ...
 Their sweet, bitter taste-
 They are red as apples
 And covered with freckles;
 Topping them off are green
 And ivory trimmings ...

When dealing with science or math,
There's a definite road or path.
Equations and balances,
Meters and yards.
Levels of tolerance,
And the composition of stars.
Burning and blasting,
Massing and solving.
They leave a mark,
Everlasting.

Chris Willet

The light from the sun shining off the crystal
Sitting on the counter waiting to be used
Sometimes dirty, sometimes clean
The tip of the beaker sticking out like a bird's beak
The numbers on the side in white
Letters up to 250 ml
Sitting on the counter waiting to be used
Students run to take it from the counter
Filled with water or other liquids
Washed out or left dirty
But there is always somebody who loses a grip on the beaker.
Slowly it falls, hitting the floor, and shattering into pieces.

Ociel Perez

Math, math

Math, math

Math, math

Math, math

Math, math
I who could get you in trouble
